

Shayla L. Hilton

Shayla L. Hilton is a daughter, sister, educator, entrepreneur, speaker, the author of Chasing Contentment and creator of Haven of Hope—a blog written to spread hope, help, and healing to the hurting soul through the love of Jesus Christ. Shayla is passionate about encouraging, equipping, and empowering others.

She was born and raised in Virginia but has since lived in North Carolina for many years.

After graduating from Salem High School in 2003, Shayla began her journey in Greensboro, NC at North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University. She graduated, four years later, with a bachelor's degree in Elementary Education.

She went on to receive two additional advanced degrees. A master's degree in Elementary Education was earned from Elon University and from High Point University, a second master's degree in Educational Leadership. Currently, Shayla is working on her doctorate degree, Doctor of Education in Christian Leadership, at Liberty University.

In 2017, Shayla and her business partner, Co-Founded their non-profit organization, The Birthing Movement, Inc. The Birthing Movement exists to assist women and young girls who are pregnant with purpose, push through the pain of birthing out the promises of God in their lives. The organization hosts monthly workshops, an annual conference, and supports clients who are ready to launch businesses, write books, and many other personal projects.

Ultimately, it is Shayla's desire to see people deepen their relationship with God, and then be everything that He created them to be.

For additional information, please visit shaylahilton.com and thebirthingmovement.com.

shaylahilton.com